In another column we reproduce from our Shanghai contemporaries a report that Tamsui has been taken by the French. The date at which this report was gucrent at Shanghai was the 14th instant-a week age -and as we have received direct advices. 3397 3494 3314 from Amoy to that date, we cannot believe that such an important event could have transpired without news of it having been received in Hongkong before this. The re-3749 port may be true, but for the present we are 3803 inclined to discredit it. One item given by the Shanghai Mercury seems to carry more hugging under the protection of the forts at 3949 3955 3964 3974 weight than the other news. This is that a 4026 telegram has been received from Admiral 4140 Courbet stating that the Chinese, having at-4188 4200 tacked the advanced position of the French on photographs of the locality and from sketches 4229 4239 4242 4252 the Tamsui Road, were repulsed with heavy taken by two English naval officers who witnessed 4293 4291 4298 4311 4361 loss and withdrow in disorder. The Morcury, however, does not state when, how, or by whom the telegram was 4785 4795 4804 4813 received. In considering the probabilities of the case, it is worthy of note that although we have papers from Shangbai to the 17th 5023 5031 5040 instant, no contradiction had up to that date been given either of this particular item or

The Java Bode of the 21st October quotes an sale of the floating iron dock with all its plans and appliances in Batavia readstead, owing to the failure of the Netherlands India Dry Dock Company in consequence of manifold mishaps and difficulties, points out that one of the pressing requirements of Batavia is facilities for docking and overhauling large vessels. The Government dock at Onrust is not always available, and can only be turned to account at great expense and loss of time. The docks at Tanjong Prick are still unfinished. Hence it considers that the misfortunes attending the liquidating company offers a splendid opportunity for enterprising persons to start a docking business at Batavia, with every prospect of securing the enstom of damaged foreign vessels passing through Sunda Straits from the Indian Ocean, owing to their masters being more likely, inthat case to call at that port for repairs than proceed further on to Singapore.

Another fatal earth-cutting accident occurred on the Kowlcon side of the water on Thursday last. In the work of making a basin for the police launches and boats at Tsim Tsa Tsui some earth was required for filling in purposes, and the contractors obtained permission from Government to take the soil from some land at the end of Yaumati village, where a good deal or reclamation and levelling has lately been going on. The work does not appear to have been done under any supervision, but the contractors sent boats to get the earth, and the men cut it away as they pleased. The consequence has been At H. I. G. In matters of administration, too, the advantages will be not less important. The power will be conferred of quickly removing an obnoxious provincial administration, and of putting the right min in the right place without loss of time. The effects of railways will likewise be felt on the social side of the question; and their levelling tendency will beyond question produce some searchings of heart among the privileged classes. A red-buttoned mandarin whirling through the country in company with a parcel of rich shopkeepers, not one of whom probably would be able to explain a single allusion in the "Book of Odes," would be in a position as distasteful to himself as embarrassing to his fellow travellers. His Lordship said this was one of those distrassing cases in which a person in a responsible position and fallen a victim to temptation which he ought to have resisted. A great deal of money passed through his hands, and doubtless he was thus subjected to much temptation: and his Lordship had no doubt that had the prisoner succeeded in his business matters he would have repaid the money. Still he ought not to have taken it, and it would be necessary to pass such a sentence upon him as would deter others from - doing the same thing. BOBBERY WITH VIOLENCE. Chan A On, coolie, was charged with having been concerned with others not in custody in stealing a bag containing $5.63 in money from the person of a seaman named Chan Achan on the Praya West, on the 20th instant. Complainent said he was walking along the Praya when nine men and three boys came round him. One man seized his neck, three others seized his hands, and the defendant snatched away his purse, containing the money stated. The lot then ran off, but complainant caught the defendant and gave him into custody. The bag was lost, however, having been handed to another man, who got away with it.

The defendant denied having been concorned in the affair; he said he was only 13 years of His Worship sent him to gool for six weeks' hard labour, and for six strokes on the breach with a rattan.

There seems no chance at present of any settlement of war troubles. It is stated on good authority that the Chinese are despatching a Sect to Formosa to attack the French ships that are now blockeding their parts. Negotiations drag on, but without any perceptible results.

The Chintung came in yesterday from Hongkong. She brought as passengers thirteen German sorgeants or drill-masters, seemingly steady and stordy men, for the Chinese army, engaged to serve in peace or in active war. use any mastiffs to drive the wolves from their pastures" (pp. 146, 147). The general atotement with which the passage above quoted begins is, we duresay, true enough; but the particular illustration which follows is unfortunate. Conan. Duke of Brittany and Earl of Richmond, who gave tog the Athev of Fore the valley watered by the Ure (Joreval, "Jarvanx), to which they removed in 1156, died more than 150 years before Edward III, came to the throne. And though Burton, in his Monasticon Eboracense, which Mr. Harting follows, tolls this story about the monks being forbidden to keep mastiffs, Conan's charter itself, if it be correctly given in Dugdale, contradicts him flatly in this matter. It would appear that, far from "forbidding" them to use any mostiffs," Conan expressly commanded the monks to keep thom. Such express command may, no doubt, fairly he deemed to show that, but for its insertion in the charter, the monks would not have been allowed to hunt or disturb the wolves in Wensleydale. Though wolves burvived in Scotland and Ireland until about the middle of the last century, in England they probably became extinct during Henry VII.'s reign. Manwood was, therefore, fully justified in maying " wee hans none here in England, nor I-thinks we neuer shall-haue, in any of our Forests." The season for wolf-hunting is said to have lasted from Christmas to Lady Day .--Antiquary.
